Windows and Linux Players write their own logs. Player add-ons also write logs that are added to the player's log. If you want to avoid a high number of log entries, you can exclude add-on logs from the player log.

To do so, perform the following steps:

1. In IXM One, go to the player configuration or the configuration group:

For an individual player, go to Channels > Location. Double-click on your player and select Edit next to Configuration in the Edit player dialog.

For a configuration group, go to Administration > Player > Configuration groups and double-click on the configuration group.

2. In the Edit configuration group window, ensure that Display extended modules is enabled.
3. Under Modules, select InternetReceiver > Logging.
4. Under Settings, select Exclude add-on logs from player logs.
5. Click Save to save your changes.
